

Singapore Branch of the International Law Association

Application Form

The International Law Association was founded in Brussels in 1873, and its objectives are “the study, clarification and development of international law, both public and private, and the furtherance of international understanding and respect for international law”.

It presently has more than 4,300 members, with 60 branches all over the world. To apply to join the Singapore Branch of the International Law Association, please complete and submit the form below.

Benefits of ILA Membership

In addition to the benefits offered by your local branch, members will:

- Be part of an Association established since 1873 which has as its objectives the study, clarification and development of both public and private international law.
- Have the opportunity to become involved in the various International Committees and Study Groups through which these aims are pursued (members must be nominated by their branch and have sufficient and relevant expertise in the subject area, decisions on membership admission is up to the individual Committee Chairs).
- Receive discounted registration rates at the ILA Biennial and Regional Conferences and where relevant events held by the member's branch.
- Be sent updates on news and events that are relevant to the ILA in general or to the areas of expertise they have listed.
- Be part of a worldwide network of people involved in all aspects of International Law such as:
 - Judiciary and Senior Government lawyers
 - Professors at leading Universities or Law Schools
 - Practitioners of International Law (normally senior advocates)
 - As well as less senior academics and practitioners and in certain branches the admission of students on a yearly basis.
- Have online access to:
 - ILA Biennial Conference Reports (currently 2012 onwards)
 - Members directory
 - Expertise listings
